About University

Khalifa University is an independent, non-profit coeducational institution, dedicated to the advancement of learning through teaching and research, and discovery and application of knowledge. It pursues international recognition as a world-class research intensive university, with a strong reputation for interdisciplinary teaching and research. The University is actively developing an international network of partners and innovative research programs to advance regionally relevant research and innovation in the UAE and the region at large. Research within the University intersects Departments, Institutes and Centers, as well as the work of individual faculty, to address thematic priorities such as Aerospace, Transport & Logistics; Energy & Environment; Healthcare; Information & Communication Technology; and Security.

Brief Description

The Department of Humanities and Social Sciences is an academic unit within the College of Science. The department runs an interdisciplinary, diverse but closely related set of courses that underpin and provide analytical context to technologically oriented degree programs across the University. The department provides ample opportunities for professional growth and for close interaction with our faculty and students.

Detailed information can be found at: <http://www.kustar.ac.ae/pages/department-of-humanities-and-social-sciences>

Detailed Description

Starting in Fall 2017, this position will conduct teaching, research and academic service in the Business/Management area. Academic rank is open.

Successful candidates are expected to teach at the undergraduate and graduate levels, establish and maintain active research programs that lead to peer-reviewed high-impact publications, and provide service to the department, the university, and the profession.

Successful candidates are also expected to be involved in thematic research within one or more of the university research priority areas.

Job Requirements

Applicants must have an earned doctoral degree in Business/Management or a closely related field from a reputable university. The Department is particularly interested in motivated candidates with high-impact research record and curriculum/degree development experiences.

The candidate is expected to have a strong research potential, demonstrated by high impact research output, and teaching experience in above mentioned areas. The candidate must possess excellent communication skills. The medium of instruction across Khalifa University is English.

Broaden Your Horizons ... Become an Educator at the Higher Colleges of Technology

The Higher Colleges of Technology (HCT) provides post-secondary education to Emirati men and women at colleges located in eight cities across the United Arab Emirates - Abu Dhabi, Al Ain, Dubai, Fujairah, Madinat Zayed, Ras Al Khaimah, Ruwais and Sharjah. The HCT's 16 campuses range in size from 500 students, in smaller cities, to nearly 3,000 students, in the larger cities.

Founded in 1988, HCT has grown to be the UAE's largest higher educational institution, with over 23,000 students attending the modern, technology-oriented men's and women's campuses. The HCT employs approximately 2,000 staff from over 60 different countries, who are able to share practices, ideas and cultures from around the world, thereby enriching our organizational culture.

The HCT is following the international academic standards in classifying faculty according to their qualification & experience in one of the three following ranks:

- Assistant Professor
- Associate Professor
- Professor

With a reputation for embedding innovative teaching and learning methods and technologies in its pedagogy, HCT is at the cutting edge of the UAE's drive to modernize and diversify the economy towards one that is primarily knowledge-based. Teaching methods and technology are the most modern available and focus on student achievement.

Business Faculty

Faculty provides effective instruction in general Business subjects and for contributing to at least 2 or more specific areas, such as: Accounting; Finance and Banking; Human Resource Management; International Business Management; Quality and Strategic Management; Tourism and Events Management; and Supply Chain Management. The Applied Business Program is highly integrated with Information Technology and Faculty members will need to have highly developed IT skills.

Education and Qualifications:

- PhD in a relevant discipline is required.
- A minimum of 3 years of teaching/training experience, preferably at an adult or tertiary level; industrial training and development experience may be considered as relevant experience
- At least 3 years of relevant industrial experience
- Must be able to provide instruction at various levels within the program areas
- Experience in developing course curriculum as per accreditation and international standards
- Excellent verbal and written communication skills and a demonstrated competency to interact with people at all levels of the organization

Rewarding Compensation: We seek to employ committed, quality professionals and offer 3 year renewable full time contracts. Our competitive remuneration packages include a tax-free salary and allowances which cover relocation, accommodation and annual air tickets for you and your family. The HCT does not provide housing; rather, we provide employees with additional compensation above your base salary to assist you with household costs. Additional benefits included in the contract are tuition assistance for eligible children, comprehensive medical coverage, annual leave days, end of service gratuity and repatriation benefits.

A New Ph.D. Programme in Global Studies at Urbino University

The University of Urbino is launching a new interdisciplinary Ph.D. Programme in Global Studies, at the crossroads of Economics, Business, Sociology, Political Science and Law. The Programme has a high quality faculty, including outstanding guests lecturers from major international universities.

Two thematic areas will be addressed in alternate years:

- in the edition starting in 2017-2018: International Economic Policy, Business and Governance
- in the edition starting in 2018-2019: Global Society, Cross-border Mobility and Law

Ph.D. students in this year's thematic area, International Economic Policy, Business and Governance, will be trained to carry out research on economic, political and social relations across national borders. A specific attention will be given to:

- economic growth after the Great Recession, technological change and inequality across and within countries;
- the international strategies of firms (multinational corporations and SMEs), finance and labour;
- political processes and policies carried out by European and international institutions and major countries for the governance of globalisation.

The Ph.D. Programme is developed over three years:

- a first year of courses and exams in Urbino;
- a second year of international research and training, mainly spent in international universities associated to the Programme;
- a third year of research activity for completing the Ph.D. thesis.

English will be the working language of the Ph.D. Programme.

Eight positions are offered in the 2017-2018 Ph.D. Programme, including six positions with scholarships covering fees and an annual tax-free stipend at standard Italian rates (€ 13,600 per year; the amount is increased by 50% for training periods outside Italy).

Introductory and background courses will be held in September-October 2017, in order to fill gaps in students' competences in English, Economics, Business, Social Sciences, Quantitative Methods.

Courses with exams will take place at Urbino University during the first year, starting from end October 2017. They will be structured into teaching modules organised over two months periods: six weeks of half day teaching and half day studying, one week fully devoted to studying, one week of exams (written tests and/or papers).

Data Labs will provide opportunities for hands-on work on databases leading to the preparation of statistical and econometric analyses.

Seminars (with no exams) will cover highly debated and cutting edge themes – such as Inequality, Global digital economy, Born global SMEs, International finance, Environmental regulation, Fiscal and monetary policy, Welfare and social policies, International diplomacy – as well as advanced research methods and research funding strategies. Some seminars will be held in Italian.

Deadlines:

First week of June: Opening of applications at www.uniurb.it/global-studies

June 30th 2017: Applications due

Early in July: Interview of selected candidates

Information on the Ph.D. Programme and Faculty is available at the website: www.uniurb.it/global-studies

Copenhagen Business School and the Department of International Economics and Management invite applications for a vacant PhD scholarship within the field of International Business.

Examples of research areas that such a scholarship might cover include:

- The strategies and organizational structures and practices of MNCs to navigate societal grand challenges
- The impact of MNCs' home and host contexts on their ability to navigate barriers resulting from anti-globalization
- The strategies MNCs use to negotiate, change, and sustain their roles and responsibilities within societal grand challenges, such as the migration crisis
- How the movement of people across borders bridges different international contexts and drives firm internationalization and innovation

This is one of seven positions in a PhD cohort focused on the theme: "Multinational corporations (MNCs) in the age of anti-globalization". Compared to the 1980s, where MNCs flourished due to the neo-liberal turn that embraced globalization, and which did bring dynamism, wealth and leadership practices across the globe, the 2010s are characterized by increased skepticism towards globalization. This skepticism arises from increased inequality, but also technological innovation, whereby blue-collar workers are increasingly becoming redundant. It has, for instance, expressed itself in the populist revolt that underpinned the 2016 US presidential election and Brexit and it seems that the neoliberal order is now being reconfigured, with a greater focus on nationalism and national interests. There is also an increased focus on the behavior and strategies of MNCs. These issues are being addressed by governments, the EU and international organizations (IOs) such as the UN. Thus, the aim of this PhD cohort is on the one hand, to focus on the current global challenges MNCs face, which types of strategies they adopt in response, and in what way they organize their activities, and on the other hand what the responses of IOs and governments are and what these responses imply for the strategies of MNCs. Academic research on this question can generate new insights into the relationship between firm-level decision-making by MNCs, in relation to international organizations, the EU and governments and the increasingly anti-global environment they all operate in.
